Do you want to give your apartment a facelift but don't know where to start?

Let's be real: There are probably so many ideas in your head! It'd be nice if there were a way to see your projects before you committed to them.

Luckily, there are several design apps at your disposal. These apps help you visualize your project ideas to pursue the right one.

Design apps are also an excellent way to get feedback from other designers. Of course, you can ask your significant other what they think of your plan. But asking a professional is usually more valuable.

Are you ready to discover five of our favorite apps for redesigning your apartment? Come on, let's go!

1. Houzz

You can't beat using the Houzz app. After all, this app has over 17 million photos of interior design ideas!

A few features you can access on this app are "View in My Room 3D" and "Sketch." These features allow you to draft ideas and add notes and inspirational photos in the margins.

You can even keep a list of product links in the app, so you know what you need to put on your shopping list.

Need advice on how your new layout is coming along? Want to know what you can do to improve your living room design? Ask the Houzz community what they think! The app's discussion boards are the perfect place to get feedback from fellow renters and professionals.

You can't beat this one-stop-shop of an app! Or, at least, that's how we feel. But, of course, you'll have to try the app and let us know your thoughts.

2. Home Design 3D

Want to draw floor plans on your tablet, smartphone, or desktop? Home Design 3D is the way to go!

With versions for both Mac and PC, this app enables you to create a digital mockup of your home so you can see how decorations might look. In addition, it offers a 2D modeling mode for people who want a quick sketch and a 3D option for designers who wish for a more realistic view.

This app comes preloaded with more than 1,500 pieces of furniture and hundreds of textures! Anuman, the app's developer, has made it easy to visualize a stunning interior!

There's nothing more exciting than seeing your design come to life. So wait until you see everything come together in real time!

3. Pinterest

I don't know about you, but Pinterest is my go-to app for visual inspiration. Whenever I have my interior designer hat on, I spend hours browsing this app for ideas.

Not familiar with Pinterest? Here's a basic rundown of how it works (it's straightforward):

- Create an account and set up some "boards.". You can organize your boards however you please. For example, you might dedicate one board to rustic farmhouse designs, and other to minimalist bedroom designs.
- Add images to these boards. You can upload your pictures or "pin" photos from other users' boards.
- Follow the accounts you like, and enjoy a constant stream of design inspiration!

It's not hard to find content on Pinterest. All you have to do is use the search bar to browse for your interests. It won't take long before your head is full of ideas for your apartment!

4. Palette Cam

As you work through redesigning your apartment, you may want to incorporate some decorative pieces.

But how do you know if the color of your decorations matches the rest of the interior?

Well, you could use the Palette Cam app! This digital color palette will help you create the perfect color scheme for your apartment.

Palette Cam is an excellent tool for designers and artists. It allows you to upload photos of your project and recommends colors that complement your design.

If you need some inspiration, Palette also has an inspiration page. Browse stunning photos and turn them into color palettes for your space.

If you hire an interior designer, you can share your Palette Cam images with them. These images will help them to generate ideas that suit your color choices.

5. Homestyler

On the Homestyler app, you can snap a picture of your interior to get a perspective of your space. From there, you can add 3D models of furniture products to see what might look good in your space.

After "playing" around with your space, you can share your design with millions of designers. Then, they'll be able to give you feedback on your designs. They'll tell you what they like and what could be improved.

So if you're looking for a professional opinion, this is the app you need. Think of it as a personal trainer for your home design!

You probably already have enough apps on your phone. But if you're redesigning your apartment, these apps can make the job a bit easier.

With these programs, you can find inspiration, improve your layout, and get professional feedback, as practiced by many tenants of apartments near Lansing.

And, thanks to the social media aspect of these apps, you may even make some new friends along the way!
