The way you organize, arrange and interact with your apps on Android is called the launcher. Launchers include series of home screens, where you can easily arrange app widgets and shortcuts and an app drawer. It would be better for you to understand that every phone comes with a launcher, but there are endless third-party launchers also which you can use to customize your device. If you are not happy with the way your home screens act or look, then you can download an app to change the appearance of your device. There is really no doubt that Android launcher apps have different features than any other apps and you can do some great things with these apps.

Let's go through some of the best Android Launchers for your device

Evie Launcher

It is a famous lightweight launcher that's totally free. You can easily backup your Evie settings and layout to your Google Drive. Evie supports gestures with user customization and allows you to set swipe down to "Open Notifications" instead of Evie Search. It does a perfect job of making Android Layout look more attractive and unique. It is quite sophisticated and has its own style. If you want to give a decent and trendy look to your home screen, then you should go for the Evie launcher right now itself.

Pros

- Perfect and compatible with big screen devices
- Distinctive apps menu

Cons

- It is not quite as feature-rich as Nova Launcher

Nova Launcher

This popular launcher has been around since 2011 and also one of the most preferable launchers by the users. Its incarnation feels and look is like an ultra-customizable version of Google's own phones. At the time of loading it for the first time, you would be able to select the app drawer with a button swipe or press and can choose either the 'dark' or 'light' theme. Within a few seconds, you would have full access to the most tasteful and cleanest custom launcher.

Nova Launcher is free to use and you do not have to pay anything for using it. The paid version unlocks features such as gesture shortcuts and app hiding. But, you would be happy with the freebie Nova Launcher for sure.

Pros

- Easy customization
- Much better and cleaner than its older versions
- Useful setup wizard and settings menu

Cons

- Custom elements look perfect than others

Blackberry Launcher

It is easy to use most launchers without paying any single penny. Blackberry Hub is also a free launcher but to get access to its other features you would need to pay 89p per month for complete access. This launcher is very interesting since it allows you to look at updates and various messages from your social media platform in one spot. The interface of Blackberry Hub is similar to the default Google design.

Pros

- A free taste of the BlackBerry experience
- Design inspired by Google

Cons

- Features ads in Free version

Try Blackberry Launcher

At last, you are completely aware of the best launchers for Android 2019.
