In brief

Being a student is rarely an easy task. Be it in school, college, or university, students always have struggles with academia, as well as with studying-related things, like fitting in their class or trying to find the balance between pursuing their degree and working to pay their tuition.

Being a student is rarely an easy task. Be it in school, college, or university, students always have struggles with academia, as well as with studying-related things, like fitting in their class or trying to find the balance between pursuing their degree and working to pay their tuition.

Maintaining such a balance is hard, and it requires certain sacrifices. That's why students often end up checking EssayHub reviews to see if the service corresponds to their needs. They dream of offloading at least some tasks.

For several decades, students had only two options when it came to writing assignments: either do them on their own or order them from an essay writing service. But last year, an alternative option arrived - GPT Chat. Many users treat it like the "Word Processor of Gods."

Okay, it doesn't give you an option to, let's say, delete the professor you don't like or erase the discipline you're struggling with from history. None of that Stephen King's short story stuff will happen. But the tool can produce texts quickly.

The Benefits and Disadvantages of Using GPT Chat

So, before we go into checking the advantages and disadvantages of using the tool, we need to answer one question: what is Chat GPT? It's a chatbot that is trained to follow the instructions of its users precisely and produce texts based on the said instructions.

When OpenAI launched the app in late 2022, it broke a record by attracting over 100 million users two months after its release. The numbers speak for themselves, you might think. But things are a bit different when you go into details.

Pros:

- Using GPT Chat is absolutely free, so you don't have to spend extra money on it if you don't need advanced features.
- The tool has a user-friendly interface, so you don't have to study manuals to figure out how it works.
- The app works fast: provide it with detailed instructions on what kind of assistance you need, and you'll get it within seconds.

Cons:

- While the tool is trained to produce texts in the blink of an eye, the end product may be unoriginal and lacking any creativity.

- After using the tool for creating your assignment, you will have to rewrite it as there are AI detectors that can easily determine whether the text was written by a human or not.
- The fast-paced production often leads to content of poor quality. You cannot rely on the sources that Open AI utilizes for training the chatbot.
- ChatGPT doesn't fact-check the materials it utilizes to craft your assignment; hence, some sources can be unreliable.
- Unlike experts from an assignment writing service, the tool cannot handle complex tasks that rely on a lot of research and analysis.
- The thing that ChatGPT has in common with King's "Word Processor of Gods" is that it's prone to technical errors. A glitch in the system may leave users with useless outputs.

The Benefits and Drawbacks of Using Assignment Writing Services

As you can see, ChatGPT definitely has certain advantages. However, it's hard to say that it is the best option when you need help with academic writing.

Let's see whether online helpers with human experts fare better. After all, there must be some reason why, despite the above-mentioned app and other writing tools, students still opt for a human touch when in need of academic help. So, let's check out the pros and cons of having your task written by human experts.

Pros:

- You get customized assignment writing help. Human experts are well-qualified to meet your assignment requirements, such as tone of voice, writing style, and formatting.
- You can always request a plagiarism report to make sure that the ordered assignment doesn't contain plagiarized materials.
- When ordering from an assignment writing service, you can rest assured that your personal and financial data are secured.
- Human experts can execute a vast array of assignments: anything from simple school assignments to dissertations.
- Using the service allows users to get matched with an expert in a field according to their requirements.
- Using a service is not just about getting your work done, as when checking the end product, you can learn something new.

Cons:

- Unfortunately, a human expert cannot write your assignment within minutes; the minimum deadline is between three and six hours.
- It is recommended to check and revise the end product to make sure that it is done correctly.
- Ordering from online assignment helpers is not free, although the prices are mostly suitable for students who are tight on budget.

Evaluating the Reputation of Both Options

While there are cases when students are left unsatisfied with the end product, assignment help services have been around for decades. They successfully transitioned to the digital age, and most students find them trustworthy.

When it comes to the OpenAI invention, it's still earning its reputation. On the one hand, it can execute simple tasks with a decent level of accuracy. You can say that the tool can craft a high school piece with the same level of quality as human experts. On the other hand, human experts fare better with more complex assignments.

The app has other limitations. For example, it can produce texts up to 4100 characters. It may work well with short texts. But you won't go far with it when you need a longer piece. Needless to say, ChatGPT will be absolutely useless with large works like a thesis or dissertation.

Besides, the output always requires rewrites, as AI detectors led to several students being expelled from colleges and universities. It's something that doesn't happen when you have your text written by human experts. It's hard to determine if the assignment was written by another human, and it's even harder to prove it.

Conclusion

While AI writing can come in handy when it comes to short works, it doesn't come close to the level of quality of complex assignments crafted by human experts. The AI detectors easily make using AI tools a more risky endeavor than ordering from an assignment writing service like EssayHub: there, you can always have customized help that is not limited to 4000 characters. Thousands of students have already taken advantage of such a service.

While it's not free, the prices are reasonable. And it's unlikely that you'll face consequences that are close to the "Word Processor of Gods" ending when your assignment is in the hands of human professionals. So, choose wisely.
