It helps you connect with who you're talking to. Let's learn more about it, how to use it, and when there might be a better way to say something.

What does YFM mean?

YFM, or "You Feel Me?", is basically like asking "Do you get what I'm saying?" or "Do you agree?" You're not looking for a yes or no answer. You want to make sure the other person really feels what you're saying and is on the same page.

YFM can be used in various contexts, from casual conversations to more heartfelt discussions. Here are some examples to illustrate its versatility:
